Many Women of Town Successfully Conduct Their Own Enterprise

Is Rare Accomplishment And A Distinction For Community Of This Size To Find So Many Women Engaged In Their Own Business; Lauded By Prominent Business Men.

More than a score of Gettysburg women are actively engaged in and conduct their own business, a distinction for a community of this size, and acknowledged by staid business men a complimentary achievement for the members of the fair sex.

Operating any business enterprise in this age of keen competition with so many adverse conditions, sharp-witted, alert and trained experts in each field, is a problem for a man of wide experience. For a woman it is more difficult and if she is successful, as Gettysburg women have been, it is more of an accomplishment, one prominent business man said.

The Times sought to secure some information from each Gettysburg woman engaged in business. Most of them willingly consented to grant an interview while a few confessed they "would rather not say anything."

Following is a brief sketch of those who granted an interview:

Melva K. Heiges

Permanent waving, when properly done, is beneficial rather than harmful to the hair and scalp, in the opinion of Miss Melva K. Heiges, who is rounding out five years as the local exponent of the Harper Method for the care and treatment of the hair. Miss Heiges has just completed renovating her Harper Method Beauty Shoppe, Baltimore street, where she began business five years ago.

Miss Heiges, a daughter of Burgess and Mrs. C. A. Heiges, Buford avenue, was the first person to open a beauty parlor in Gettysburg, and has enjoyed great popularity with an ever-widening group of satisfied customers.

This pioneer in beauty parlor work in Gettysburg is convinced that a good training in an accredited school of beauty culture is of supreme importance in giving satisfaction to the customer, and in properly applying permanent and other forms of hair dressing. For that reason she took a full four-month course at the Harper school in Rochester, New York.

A year ago, Miss Heiges installed a Frederic permanent hair waving machine by which she is able to give the wide permanents, either by oil or steam, so greatly sought after by the modish woman.

Since the renovation of her establishment, Miss Heiges is urging women of Gettysburg and Adams county to visit her beauty salon, to inspect it and to discuss with the proprietor all the particulars of the latest styles in hair dressing and hair care and culture.

Lou Etta Sharets

Conducting the only exclusive kiddie store in Gettysburg, Miss Lou Etta Sharets will end two years in the business this May. Going into the business in 1927, with her sister-in-law, Miss Sharets has since acquired the interest of the store, her partner having moved from town.

Beginning as a souvenir and gift shop, located in the Thompson building, Carlisle street, Miss Sharets has gradually changed her line of merchandise until she now handles exclusively children's clothes. Ready-to-wear and hand made articles for children between the ages of two and 14 are included in her line of goods.

On Tuesday, Miss Sharets will move her business into the room formerly occupied by Nace's Music store, Carlisle street. In this room, the proprietress plans to make extensive improvements to and enlarge her business to take care of the increasing demand for her merchandise.

The Misses Chritzman

The only twins among the women in business in Gettysburg are the Misses Lillie B. and Louise Chritzman, proprietors of the Marinsello Beauty Shoppe, Baltimore street. They deserted a profession as milliners to enter the beauty parlor business two years ago, and have been amply rewarded for the change, their shoppe being popular among a wide clientele.

Both the Misses Chritzman recently completed a course at the Eugene school of permanent waving in Philadelphia, after they had installed one of the new Eugene waving machines. In addition, Miss Lillie B. Chritzman is a graduate of the National school of cosmetics, Philadelphia, where she completed a four-month course as an honor student.

Beatrice M. Minter

The Beatrice Beauty Salon, in the Kadel building, Center Square, conducted by Miss Beatrice M. Minter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. N. L. Minter, 159 East Middle street, is the "baby" business woman in town. Miss Minter is the last of the Gettysburg girls to engage in business, having established her beauty salon in July, 1927.

All that appertains to Milady's fair complexion and make-up are contained in Beatrice's beauty salon, from permanent waving, shampooing, manicuring, facials, hair dyeing, eye-brow plucking and arching, to hair cutting and countless other forms of face, hair and scalp treatments.

Miss Minter is a graduate of the Harrisburg school of beauty culture, completing the six months course, after which she engaged in business here.

The young business woman is only 21 years of age but the success of her enterprise during the few months she has been engaged places her in the ranks of successful business women.

One of the features of her business is eye-lash curling, a new fad in this vicinity, "and it is surprising to know how many patrons I have who subscribe to this treatment," Miss Minter said.

Wax marceling, Miss Minter said, is another distinctive attraction of her business.

Miss Minter subscribes to the Edmond permanent waving and the Anotele beauty methods as most popular and satisfactory.

Elizabeth Van Cleve

Miss Elizabeth Van Cleve is proprietor of a unique business. In conducting the Woman's Exchange, Chambersburg street, Miss Van Cleve acts only as the medium by which other women of Gettysburg and Adams county get their handiwork and the products of their kitchens before purchasers. She does not own a penny's worth of the stock, taking all goods on consignment, selling them for the consignors and receiving a small margin of profit for herself.

Miss Van Cleve took over the management of the Woman's Exchange in the fall of 1913, after it had been in existence about 10 years. The business was started originally by Mrs. E. A. Crouse, who conducted an exchange for two months before Christmas, specializing in gifts, cakes, candies and pies.

Tasty cakes, rolls, pies, candies, baked fresh every day, are always to be had at the Woman's Exchange, and when seeking attractive gifts or small items of house furnishings the Woman's Exchange is always at your service, Miss Van Cleve said.

Mrs. Laura B. Fissel

Stepping from the role of housewife into the management of an established insurance agency, and increasing the business in seven years by leaps and bounds, Mrs. Laura B. Fissel, Baltimore street, says she has found "real pleasure" in business. At the same time, she has not neglected in any particular her motherly devotion to three children, left fatherless by the death of George Fissel, whose insurance agency in the Masonic building he established sixteen years ago.

According to Mrs. Fissel, more insurance of every kind, fire, automobile, liability and the many forms of special coverage, is being written now than when she took over the conduct of the insurance agency, which now bears her name. She attributes the growth in insurance to the fact that people are realizing, more and more each day, (Continued on Second Page)

SQUALL WRECKS BARN BUILDING; OTHER DAMAGE

Young Tornado Plays Havoc With Buildings, Fences And Trees.

UPROOTS TREES

A terrific wind squall starting in the vicinity of Harry Hoke's farm, along the Bonnaville road, completely destroyed the barn, garage and chicken house located on the farm Thursday evening between 6 and 7 o'clock.

The damage was confined to the building only. The machinery was not damaged and livestock in the barn at the time escaped injury. John Hoke, who lives on the farm, rescued his horse after it had been thrown several feet by the falling barn.

Parts of the barn were carried for one hundred feet into a woods adjoining it, where a large tree was also uprooted by the wind. The wind also played havoc with a bale of wire that was hurled 150 yards in the air, landing in a tree near the Hoke home.

Damage to the property is estimated at $800, with no insurance covering the loss. Mr. Hoke expects to replace the old 28x40 barn with a new structure.

The squall was in the nature of a young tornado and was accompanied by heavy rain. Roads in the vicinity of town were covered with several inches of water, according to highway patrolmen, and in many places, trees were uprooted, fences blown down and other damage done by the strong wind.

There was no particular damage to the apple blossoms and county growers declared that the yield will not be injured unless a severe windstorm and rain visit this district within the next three or four days.

71 ARE DEAD IN TORNADO

Atlanta, April 26 (AP).—The total known dead in the tornado-stricken sections of Georgia and South Carolina reached 71 today. Several hundred were injured.

The greatest destruction was wrought in South Georgia, 65 of the dead being in that section. The other six in the death list were in North Carolina.

Statesboro, Georgia, county seat of Bulloch county, near Savannah, was the hardest hit, the hospital reporting that more than 30 persons were dead and many were injured. A call was sent from there to the Georgia board of health for anti-tetanus serum and for nurses.

Metter, the seat of Candler county, reported 19 known dead from two tornadoes which were accompanied by hail and a downpour of rain.

GRAD HEADS ALMA MATER

Carlisle, April 26 (AP).—On the same rostrum on which he was graduated from Dickinson college 36 years ago, Dr. Mervin G. Filler today was inaugurated president of the college. Two bishops of the Methodist Episcopal church and educators from a number of colleges and universities participated.

Another former president of the college, Dr. George E. Reed, of Harrisburg, pronounced the benediction at the close of the ceremonies which were presided over by Judge E. W. Biddle, of the Cumberland county court.

Dr. Henry W. A. Hanson, president of Gettysburg college; Dr. John Aberly, president of the seminary, and other Gettysburgians attended the inauguration.

STOCK REPORT

New York, April 26 (AP).—The stock market opened with a display of strength today. Powerful bull operators succeeded in lifting a varied assortment of issues two to six points before noon. The growing prominence of investment stocks on the rise had a reassuring effect on traders who had been timid about taking a position because of the rising trend of money rates.

Girl Flier Establishes New Endurance Record

Tired, but not exhausted, Elinor Smith, 17, is shown waving to crowd at Roosevelt Field, L. I., after landing, having exceeded the world's record for a solo endurance flight for a woman. She was in the air 26 hours, 21 minutes and 32 seconds—breaking the record of Louise McPhetridge of Los Angeles by four hours, 18 minutes.

$201,107 Will Be Spent On Adams County Roads

Commissioners Are Informed By Highway Officials That $160,398 Additional Will Be Available For State-Aid Road Building In This District.

The sum of $201,107 is immediately available for road building purposes in Adams county, officials of the state highway department informed the county commissioners in Harrisburg, Thursday.

In addition, there will be made available during the next biennium an allocation of $100,310 for township reward work and an additional sum of $60,088 for state-aid road building.

With the money made available for immediate road building purposes, the county will not be called upon to match any part of it, all of the work being done by the maintenance forces of the highway department.

Officials in the highway department informed the commissioners they planned to improve three roads in Adams county, beginning at once, by the bituminous penetration method, commonly known as macadam.

The roads which the highway department plans to improve this summer are the one from Round Top to the Maryland state line on the Taneytown road; the route from Biglerville to Heidlersburg and the stretch from Table Rock to the Harrisburg road. The three stretches comprise about 12 miles.

Two well-known Gettysburg businessmen, who asked that their names be withheld, were instrumental in securing improvement of the Round Top-Harney road. According to the two men interested in the project, Gettysburg's trading area will be extended and made accessible for persons residing along the Taneytown road, in its entirety, because the section of the highway in Maryland already is improved, and agitation has been under way for several years to have the section in Pennsylvania macadamized.

Improvement of this highway will give residents of Taneytown easy access to Gettysburg over the shortest route between the two communities.

By improving the road from Biglerville to Heidlersburg, residents in the upper end of Adams county will be able to reach the Harrisburg road without first coming to Gettysburg or going to Mt. Holly Springs.

Residents of Table Rock also will be furnished with a hard-surface outlet to the Harrisburg road by the improvement of the road from their community to Shriver's crossing.

According to reports, the road from Round Top to the Maryland state line, a short distance from Harney, will be improved first.

A piece of air mail was received at the C. W. Epley garage, Chambersburg street, today, containing the largest amount of postage ever received at the local post office via mail route. The package consisted of automobile parts and required $5.97 postage. It was shipped from South Bend, Indiana.

4,000 Trees are Planted in County During Spring Season

During the spring planting season just closed a total of 1,080,900 forest tree seedlings were planted in the state forests. This is the largest number of trees planted on the state forests in a single year since 1919. Secretary Charles E. Dorworth of the Department of Forests and Waters, said today.

More than half of the trees planted on the state forests this year comprise eight different varieties of pine. Red pine alone amounted to 364,350, over a third of all trees planted. Other pines were Scotch pine 111,000, white pine 106,500, Japanese red pine 39,650, Banks pine 30,500, pitch pine 15,000, Austrian pine 14,000 and Corsican pine 7,000, total 688,900. Japanese larch numbered 243,000, white and Norway spruces 137,000, and hemlock 1,009.

The planting of coniferous trees, pine, larch, spruce and hemlock, totalled 1,069,000. The other 11,900 trees planted consisted of the hardwoods, ash, tulip, poplar and oak. The 1,000 hemlock trees were used in an experimental under-planting on the Penn State forest, Mifflin county. Other experimental plantings included 7,000 Corsican pine and 500 English white oak.

Trees were planted this spring on state forest land in 20 different counties of the 30 in which the state forests are located. The leading counties were Clearfield, Huntingdon and Cameron. The total tree planting by counties was:

Adams, 4,000; Bedford, 2,500; Cameron, 155,000; Centre, 36,500; Carlisle, 1,000; Clearfield, 335,000; Clinton, 96,000; Cumberland, 6,000; Franklin, 25,900; Fulton, 2,000; Huntingdon, 216,000; Jefferson, 6,500; Lackawanna, 1,000; Lycoming, 40,000; Mifflin, 15,000; Perry, 20,000; Potter, 30,000; Somerset, 50,000; Tioga, 28,500; Westmoreland, 10,000. ASK MOOSE TO TAKE PART IN MAY 30 AFFAIR

Local Lodge To Be Asked To Invite Others Here Memorial Day.

DAVIS TO SPEAK

Every lodge of the Loyal Order of Moose in Pennsylvania would be asked to participate in the Memorial Day observance here, when Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, chairman of the board of directors of the Mooseheart home in Indiana, will be the principal speaker, according to the tentative plans of the committee on arrangements from Gettysburg camp, Sons of Union Veterans.

The committee, of which J. E. Snyder is chairman, held a meeting at The Quality Shop, Baltimore street, Thursday evening, to draw up a tentative program for the occasion which is to be forwarded to Mr. Davis for his approval.

The suggestion was made to the committee that since Secretary Davis is one of the guiding spirits in the Moose organization, members of that lodge in Pennsylvania would be anxious to turn out in large numbers to honor the speaker.

Invite Other Lodges. The committee decided to ask the local lodge of Moose to extend the invitation to the other lodges in the state. It was thought that possibly some of them would come here with bands and participate in the parade which is to precede the exercises at the National cemetery.

For the most part, the program for the occasion will not vary from that of former years. It is planned to hold the customary parade of school children, patriotic, fraternal and military organizations from center square to the National cemetery.

At the cemetery, the children will strew flowers over the graves of the thousands of soldiers dead buried there and the Corporal Skelly post of the G. A. R. will hold its annual memorial services for its deceased comrades.

Music by Bands. Congressman Franklin Menges, who extended the invitation to Secretary Davis to be the speaker for the occasion, will be asked to preside at the rostrum exercises. The other details of the exercises at the cemetery remain to be formulated. The Boys' and Gettysburg bands will be asked to furnish music.

Last year's exercises were broadcast from the rostrum by the National broadcasting station and station WBBS, of Harrisburg. The committee decided to ask these two concerns if they contemplate broadcasting the address of Secretary Davis so that proper arrangements may be made.

The Bell telephone company of Pennsylvania also will be asked to install amplifiers at the rostrum so that the speaker's voice will be carried to those on the outskirts of the crowd. The system of amplifiers last year was the most efficient ever installed here, many favorable comments being heard on the power and clearness with which they sent out the voice of President Coolidge, the speaker.

LOCAL MAN IS EXONORATED IN FATAL MISHAP

Edgar Bollinger Not At Fault In Accident, Fatal To Aged Man.

INQUEST HELD

Edgar Bollinger, Gettysburg, driver of an automobile which ran down and fatally injured George Pines, 74-year-old blacksmith at Darksville, West Virginia, last Sunday, was exonerated of responsibility in connection with the aged man's death by a coroner's jury. The inquest was held at the courthouse in Martinsburg, Tuesday.

Bollinger, who was driving the automobile of Mrs. C. William Beales, Carlisle street, was enroute to Winchester last Sunday morning when the accident occurred. With him were his wife, and son, Carleton; Mrs. Beales and the latter's daughter, Miss Margaret Beales.

Eye-witnesses who testified at the inquest declared that Bollinger did "everything possible to avoid the accident," even to risking the lives of the occupants of the car he was driving. They testified that Pines' hearing was affected, and that he stepped out from behind another machine, directly into the path of Bollinger's car when it was only five feet away.

Bollinger, Mrs. Beales and Mrs. Bollinger also testified at the inquest.

Pines died in a Martinsburg hospital of a fractured skull two hours after he was struck.

KING HONORS COLLEGE GRAD

Rev. G. Raymond Haef Receives "Kaiser-i-Hind" Medal For Service.

Word has been received of a signal honor bestowed upon the Rev. G. Raymond Haef, a graduate of Gettysburg college and seminary, by King George, V, of England. The Rev. Mr. Haef, who recently returned to his former home in Salem county, New Jersey, after spending sixteen years in India mission fields, is on the honor list of the British king as a recipient of the "Kaiser-i-Hind" medal for distinguished public service in behalf of the people of India.

"Kaiser-i-Hind" translated from the Hindustani dialect means "Empress of India," the title conferred upon Queen Victoria in 1876 by an act of Parliament and proclamation at Delhi. The medal bears a replica of the British crown surmounting a field of lotus—the flower of India, and bears the inscription "For public service in India." The Kaiser-i-Hind medal is rarely bestowed upon a mission worker, as it is in recognition of services to the people outside the line of ordinary religious work.

This is the second time that the British government has honored the Rev. Mr. Haef. In 1918, he received a British war medal for his activities in recruiting and war loan work during the world war.

The Rev. Mr. Haef was graduated from college in 1909, and from the seminary in 1912. He is remembered by many persons here.

YOUTHS PLACED ON PROBATION BY M'PHERSON

Many Pleas Of Guilty Are Received By District Attorney Butt.

APPLER PLEADS

Warren Melhorn, George W. Day and Morris Bowers, confessed York Springs chicken thieves, were placed on probation for one year by Judge D. P. McPherson in court this morning. The trio appeared before the court on pleas of guilty.

In placing the three youths on probation, Judge McPherson admonished them against wrongdoing, and each of them, in turn, affirmed that the experience "was a lesson." "Doing wrong always places you in jeopardy," Judge McPherson said, "and invariably involves others, such as parents and guardians, causing worry and anxiety."

The value of the chickens stolen has been returned to the owners, the court was informed. The trio were urged to continue their "religious associations" and ordered to report to the probation officer once a month.

Placed on Probation. Raymond Johnson, charged with larceny, was placed on probation for six months by Judge McPherson, when he entered a plea of guilty.

A hearing in the desertion and non-support action against Raymond S. Plank was held this morning, during which Judge McPherson endeavored to bring Plank and his wife together again. The court continued the case until May 20, at the same time expressing the hope that the pair would return to housekeeping, and forget what has passed. The couple have two children.

Judge McPherson signed an order directing Royal McGeorge, of Philadelphia, to pay $66.66 a month for the support of his minor daughter, when the desertion and non-support actions in which McGeorge was named defendant by his wife, Mrs. Katherine Large McGeorge, Franklin township, and his daughter were called for an airing.

Pleas Are Received. District Attorney John P. Butt today said he has received pleas of guilty from the following defendants, who will be brought before the court for sentence, Saturday:

A. C. Wildasin, driving while under the influence of liquor and failing to stop and render assistance after an accident; Joseph U. Appler, seven indictments of embezzlement and malfeasance in office; Reuben Waddle, statutory offense; Charles F. Leister, four indictments of felonious assault, breaking, entering and larceny and carrying concealed deadly weapons; Donald McClellan, driving while under the influence of liquor; C. E. Kline, operating gambling device; Steve Borley, illegal possession and sale of liquor; Walter Smith, operating gambling device; A. S. Ingram, illegal possession of liquor; Paul Wisotzkey, illegal possession of liquor.

Thad Flemming, convicted of illegally possessing and selling liquor, also will be up for sentence.

that it pays to be "covered" for every contingency that might result in the loss of money through fire, automobile accidents or personal injury.

Mrs. Fissel pointed out that it pays to be insured in an established and reliable company, one that pays its claims promptly and without litigation and controversy over details.

For the last four years, Mrs. Fissel has been assisted in the detailed management of her insurance agency by Miss Treva Bream, Chambersburg street.

Mary Ramer
Entering into the insurance and real estate business upon the death of her employer, Martin Winter, Miss Mary Ramer will round out eleven years in that business in July, 1929.

Miss Ramer, also a notary public, has developed a thriving business in Gettysburg. Following one of the real estate projects of Martin Winter, which was the development of real estate north of Gettysburg, Miss Ramer has increased this development to a great extent. She has extended her activities over a wide area and enjoys considerable popularity among her clientele.

Many of her policy holders, acquired with her acquisition of the business upon the death of her former employer, have increased their insurance policies and Miss Ramer enjoys a steadily growing business, conducted on sound business judgment.

Mrs. Guy Mickle
As proprietress of the Mickle Beauty Parlor, 25 Chambersburg street, Mrs. Guy Mickle has specialized in giving permanent waving by the Eugene method.

Since operating her business on April 1, 1928, Mrs. Mickle has employed Miss Joanna Brown, a graduate of the Eugene school in Philadelphia and the Rittionelle school in Harrisburg, as her assistant.

Miss Brown gives facials, manicures, scalp treatments and marcel. She began her employment under Mrs. Mickle in August, 1928.

Mrs. Luther I. Sachs
The finest fall flower that grows is the dahlia, in the opinion of Mrs. Luther I. Sachs, Hanover street, who specializes in their cultivation. Her dahlia garden is annually visited by hundreds of persons attracted by the magnificence of the blooms.

For fifteen years, Mrs. Sachs has been raising dahlias. She began cultivation of the dahlia as an avocation, and without the idea of becoming a commercial grower. As friends pressed her to sell them dahlias, Mrs. Sachs began to raise the flowers on a commercial scale, and has been eminently successful, the demand usually exceeding the supply. She has adopted "Say It With Dahlias" as her slogan, and flowers from her gardens are

TROOPER IMPROVED

Harry Shunk, state motor patrolman who was injured more than a month ago near Philadelphia, reported at Harrisburg Thursday for further treatment for his injuries. RAIN BALKS HI-PREP TILT

Three High School Games Are Washed Out In The Last Three Weeks.

Jupiter Pluvius made it three straight over Gettysburg high's baseball team on Thursday, when the scheduled game between Gettysburg academy and the Maroons was washed out. It was the third successive time that the Martinians have been forced to postpone games on account of rain. This game will probably be played within the next two weeks.

Coach Martin is now pulling for good weather on Saturday, when the John Harris high team of Harrisburg comes to the playground for the first home game of the season.

John Harris is represented by one of the strongest scholastic ball teams in this section of the country. On Wednesday afternoon they beat Reading high in their first P. I. A. A. game which extended their winning streak to seventeen straight. This spree covers a period of two years. To beat the P. I. A. A. champions is the work cut out for the Martinians.

Just whom Coach Martin will assign the pitcher's role to is problematical, but it will either fall upon Bob Pitzer or Bill Kuhn. Both boys are ready to go and should perform well. Joe Sadler will likely start as catcher, Hartman's ankle still preventing him from real work. The game will be called at 2 o'clock.

shipped to many neighboring towns and cities.

Virginia Myers
"The Bonnet Shoppe", Baltimore street, operated by Miss Virginia Myers, is more than that now. Last fall Miss Myers decided to introduce a line of smart tailored frocks and women's hose, which immediately proved popular with the many patrons who had frequented her hat store since its opening five years ago.

In order to keep her stock in the mode, Miss Myers makes periodic trips to the larger cities where she secures the latest ideas for new creations in hats and dresses. Miss Myers features the nationally known Gage line of millinery, which is moderately priced but always in style.

Mrs. Harry Hance
Experience of fifteen years in the management of Trimmer's Five and Ten Cent store here was the training of Mrs. Harry Hance, East Middle street, who has been proprietor of the Elsie Ruth Shoppe, Chambersburg street, for two years.

Mrs. Hance's business training began in 1910 when she managed the local Trimmer store, and for fifteen years she made the store at the corner of Baltimore and West Middle streets a thriving mart of trade. Five years ago, she left the notion business, but the urge "to do something" was too strong to be resisted, and she purchased the Elsie Ruth Shoppe.

The store carries the largest stock of infants' and children's dresses, under garments and whatnots in Gettysburg. Besides, the Elsie Ruth Shoppe handles ladies' hosiery, negligees and lingerie. A cordial welcome to inspect the stock of the store awaits everyone, Mrs. Hance says.

Miss Emma Kuhn
Miss Emma Kuhn, who conducts a millinery on Chambersburg street, has been in business in Gettysburg probably longer than any other local woman. She is said to have set up in the millinery business between 20 and 25 years ago, and formerly had her shop at the corner of South Washington and West High streets.

CHAMBERSBURG MAN IS SHOT IN HEAD

Chambersburg—John Shatzley was caught in the maelstrom of a regular wild west gambling brawl in what is known as Bloody Hollow, near Glen Geary, Virginia, Sunday night and was shot in the back of the head and cut on the forehead.

Shatzley said he went to Glen Geary on Saturday to see a man on business. He was told that he was in the Bloody Hollow section and he went in search of him. He found him in a house where a poker game was running full tilt for high stakes. There was a large crowd present, Shatzley says, and one of the men cast aspersions on a friend of Shatzley. Shatzley talked back and within a short time the crowd was in turmoil. The lights were switched off and some one began firing a revolver. A bullet from a .32 revolver lodged in the back of Shatzley's head and was extracted by a physician of the Glen Geary section.

"The REDEEMING SIN" By VIRGINIA MORRIS

Based on the story by L. V. Jefferson

A VIVID STORY OF MONTMARTRE FOUNDED ON WARNER BROS. VITAPHONE TALKING PICTURE

SYNOPSIS: Jetteur, head of the Apache band at the Cafe Paradis, has incurred the anger of Fleurette whom he desires. She has threatened to kill him if she again finds him teaching her brother, Le Petit, how to rob.

CHAPTER II

JETTEUR has no intention of conforming to Fleurette's wishes. He sees in Le Petit an apt pupil and when he has him well instructed he will turn his attention to securing Fleurette as his sweetheart. He is arrogantly sure of himself. When he wants a woman it is only a question of time. Meanwhile an opportunity for easy money is at hand.

THAT night Jetteur conducts Le Petit to an antique shop at the border of Montmartre. He hoists the child to the window ledge and a moment later Le Petit is opening the door from inside. But in the darkness the intruders knock a piece of china to the floor. As the awakened shopkeeper approaches, Jetteur pulls his gun and fires two shots.

ONE of them has struck the antique dealer in the arm but the other has wounded Le Petit. Before the shopkeeper can recover his senses, Jetteur picks up the child. There is no motive of bravery or pity in his furtive race down the street with the dying boy in his arms. He must hide him or else Le Petit might tell his accomplice's name to the police.

MEANWHILE, Fleurette sips absinthe complacently at the Cafe Paradis. She is aroused by the sudden entrance of an old cab-driver. "Quick, Fleurette, I have found your brother in my cab! He is hurt!" Five minutes later Fleurette is at the office of Doctor de Boise. At the point of a revolver she tells him he must save Le Petit.

Fanfare to Accompany Boy Monarch's Formal Assumption of Duties

Bucharest (AP)—The formal assumption of his royal duties May 10 by Michael, Rumania's boy king, will be marked by many solemn ceremonies of historical significance.

Dressed in the simple national costume, King Michael, the world's youngest sovereign, will speak to his people from the throne of Rumania's first king, Michael the brave. This imposing celebration is to take place on the tenth anniversary of the foundation of greater Rumania.

After the conclusion of elaborate palace festivities in which the entire cabinet, the regency council, governmental chiefs, the highest officials of the army and the church and members of the diplomatic corps will participate, Michael will ride in state to the parliament, accompanied by his mother, Princess Helen.

In the parliamentary chamber, the royal child formally will open a special session of the national legislature to solemnize the reunion of all Rumanians under one flag.

To give the ceremonies a permanent and enduring character, the government will begin on that day the erection of a great national memorial cathedral at Bucharest. Michael will lay the cornerstone.

The juvenile sovereign also will dedicate three equestrian statues to royal predecessors; to Prince Alexander Cuza, to King Carol I and to the late King Ferdinand.

Queen Marie, Michael's grandmother, to whose ardent patriotism the creation of greater Rumania generally is attributed, will take a prominent part in the jubilee ceremonies, which will last a fortnight.

At Cluj, Marie will receive from the university the degree of doctor honoris causa.

During the ceremonies, Rumania's popular aviator, Captain Burdulai, will begin an attempted nonstop flight from Alba Julia, the cradle of Rumanian independence, to Rio de Janeiro, carrying a message of fraternal greeting to Rumania's Latin brothers and sisters in South America.

To participate in the popular rejoicings over the annexation of Transylvania, 100,000 peasants, dressed in the picturesque costumes, will make a pilgrimage afoot to Alba Julia.

New Rumanian postage stamps and currency will be issued to signalize the national rejoicings. A new Rumanian decoration to be known as "The Order of King Ferdinand I" will be created. It will constitute Rumania's congressional medal and will be awarded only to those who rendered the nation most conspicuous service.

An organization of sixty years' experience gives you its word that there is no finer oil made than ATLANTIC

THE very first oil specially made for automobile engines was made by the Atlantic refineries. And these same refineries have given the world a constant succession of motor oil improvements ever since.

No organization in the land has devoted more study to this very important factor in the operation and up-keep of automobiles. None has behind it such a vast store of knowledge, research and experimentation.

You are most careful to buy a car of proved merit and experienced manufacture. Why not apply the same caution when buying the thing upon which its very life depends? . . . MOTOR OIL.

ATLANTIC possesses qualities for heat and evaporation resistance unsurpassed in any other paraffine base, or any other type, motor oil.

It consumes so slowly that oil-level worries between crankcase draining periods are reduced to a minimum.

It will carry you farther before oil-changing becomes necessary, giving you more miles per dollar than any other oil you have ever used.

There is absolutely no motor lubricant on the market that will give you more efficient service than ATLANTIC Paraffine Base MOTOR OIL.

Correct grade for your car is obtainable at any Atlantic dealer or service station.

ATLANTIC Paraffine Base MOTOR OIL is a perfect harness-mate for Atlantic Gasoline.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEWS ADAMS

MISTAKES AS TEACHERS

MISTAKES are man's challenges. The greatest things that men do start with their mistakes. Attainment of ambition is precious, but the light for attainment is still finer in its modulating and refining discipline. One can only build from the bottom up, never from the top down. Man grows only as he falls to pick himself up and press forward—teeth gritted to win.

In quest of fulfillment of ambition one's best teachers are one's mistakes—for they tell one what to do.

The man of decision is always the man of multitudinous mistakes—but do not forget this—he is also the man who pays less attention to his mistakes than anyone else. Because, you see, man's mistakes tell him what to do—and he goes ahead and does it.

To prolong a mistake, to pet it, to humor it, to lead it around as you would a pet—to do this is in itself a greater mistake than the original one.

Your mistakes are things to jump over, to walk past, to make faces at, to bury, to starve—and to forget!

No man or woman ever begins to create and accumulate power until a real healthy mass of mistakes starts to stare him or her in the face and dare him or her on. And only those who are courageous enough to face their mistakes without backstepping or finching can ever enter the ranks of the immortals.

The forward thing to do is to talk over your mistakes—and then get busy. "Men may rise on stepping-stones of their dead selves to higher things," runs a line in Tennyson's great elegy, "In Memoriam."

A GRANDMOTHER EXPLODES

"They're letting him cry!" said the grandmother gray; "They're letting him cry, and they've sent me away."

They're raising that baby on schedules and things, They won't have a cradle that teeters and swings,

They won't let me rock him to sleep on my knee, And his father and mother won't listen to me.

"That mother and father just laughed in my face When I called their neglect of the child a disgrace.

"The very idea," I said in my rage, His mother was rocked every day at his age.

Hour after hour in my arms she would lie— No baby of mine was permitted to cry.

"I suppose I know nothing of babies at all! I've only had four of my own that were small;

I've only rocked four on these knees which they spurn, And now from my guidance and counsel they turn.

They're training the baby. Well, take it from me, The best place to train one is right on your knee.

"It wasn't my practice to calmly sit by And go on with my sewing and just let them cry.

I fed when they hungered and not by the clock, And I never begrudged the long hours that I'd rock,

These new-fangled notions are wiser they say, As if you could better a grand-mother's way."

Taxes or Schools?

Lowell, Mass., is worried over whether taxes should be high in face of depleted resources in certain heavy tax-paying industries or retrenchment in school funds.

Mayor Thomas H. Braden, above, recently taking office, has been using a pruning knife. "But there ought to be no curtailment at the expense of enlightenment," contends School Superintendent Hugh J. Molloy, below.

"Hush-a-by, hush-a-by, Little Boy Blue, Mother is singing A dream song to you.

Some day you'll grow To be a big clown, And you'll make 'em laugh In city and town.

Little Jack Rabbit

By David Cory

"I want to go to the circus To see the elephant dance.

I want to run round the sawdust ring In my very best Sunday pants.

Oh, I'm crazy to sip the pink lemonade, Oh, don't let me miss the Big Parade!

I hear the band playing. Please hurry up, I've not seen a circus since Tige was a pup."

shouted the Old Red Rooster as the Billygoat Stagecoach rumbled and bumped over cobbles and stones till every one rattled right down to his bones. Yes, and Oh, my! How those billygoats pranced and threw out their heels and shook their heads and tinkled the bells that were fastened to their horns.

"Gid-ap!" barked the Old Dog Driver. "Let 'er go!" cried excited Uncle Lucky.

On, on, faster than ever, and faster still, went the billygoats up the long steep hill, then down again to Rabbitville.

Along Lettuce Avenue they clattered, past the Three-in-One Cent Store, past the Welsh Rarebit Club and the Post Office, from the doorway of which the Old Maid Grasshopper waved a pocket handkerchief; past the Old Mill where the Dusty Moth Miller ground the corn for the farmer bunnies, past the house of Doctor Quack, the famous duck physician, and the tiny green house in which lived Mrs. Gray Mouse.

Dear me, I could go on and on just like the old coach, and say so much that I'd have no room to put in what happened when it finally drew up in Turnip City.

"Whoa, there, my good little billygoats!" shouted the Old Dog Driver, as the big Policeman Dog held up his pay to stop the taxis and wagons until everybody was safe on the sidewalk. Then the Old Dog Driver gave the billygoats a nice drink of water at the fountain and drove around to the wagon entrance on Cabbage Street.

Well, it didn't take the Shady Forest and Sunny Meadow people long to walk into the tent. Uncle Lucky headed the procession, Little Jack Rabbit next, then Grandma Bunny and Lady Love, Mr. Rabbit and the Big Brown Bear, until, way down at the end, waddled Ducky Waddles. He was slower than molasses in January, as Silas used to say when I was a boy down on the farm. Yes, years ago, and roses and snow!

"Quack, quack! Please wait for me!" begged the wabbly, web-footed little duck boy, beginning to fear he might be left out.

"Don't get nervous," cried the old gentleman rabbit, looking back just as he reached the ticket taker, a long-legged kangaroo, dressed in a uniform of blue.

"Here are the tickets for all my friends. You can count as they all file in. If more than a score and you need one more, I'll loan you my diamond pin," went on the funny old gentleman bunny, with a wink and wiggle of his pink nose. And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

Well, sir, and well ma'am! The good Old Dog Driver had brought the billygoat stagecoach to the circus in Turnip City way ahead of time, much to the delight of the little rabbit.

"Come on," cried the happy bunny boy to Timmie Meadowmouse, "we'll have time to see the animals before the show begins!" So off they went, and very soon stopped at a little tent. They didn't know it belonged to the Circus Queen, the lovely lady dressed in gauze and silver spangles, who rode on the big white horse. Well, anyway, there she sat on a circus trunk, holding her little baby in her arms.

"Hush-a-by, hush-a-by, Little Boy Blue, Mother is singing A dream song to you.

Some day you'll grow To be a big clown, And you'll make 'em laugh In city and town.

But I'll love you best If you'll whisper "Goo, goo!" To help me remember How little were you!"

"Gracious me! Am I, too, dreaming?" she exclaimed in a whisper, suddenly spying the little rabbit and tiny meadowmouse at the door. "Maybe I'm in Bylow Land."

"No, m'am," answered the little bunny, lifting his khaki cap. "Don't you hear them calling you?" Sure enough, a man's voice was shouting: "Liz, oh, Liz! Liz, Liz!"

"I'm coming," answered the Circus Queen, tenderly placing the sleeping child in its cradle. Just outside stood a big white horse, and before the little bunny could exclaim, "Oh!" "Ah!" she was riding into the big tent.

"Hurrah, Hurray! Here's Lizzie Gray, She's riding better every day," shouted and clapped all the people. But nobody knew that she was a loving mother nor that close by in a little tent slept Boy Blue.

"Uncle Lucky's Big Star Show, That's our circus name. From Lettuce Square to Everywhere We play the circus game. Over the tankard in the ring I turn a somersault or a spring. And then I give a merry laugh That tickles to death the tall giraffe."

all of a sudden shouted a funny clown, as he led the Big Parade around the ringside. There were pretty girls dressed as butterflies, elephants, gayly decorated with diamond chains, camels carrying gorgeously gowned ladies, big floats with funny little dwarfs. Yes, everything you can think of, and lots of things you'd never dream of. And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

"I'm still a boy, I'll let you know. And never too tired nor fagged to go To see a circus. Not me, you bet! If it hadn't closed down I'd be there yet."

poetically exclaimed Uncle Lucky, the dear old gentleman rabbit, as he and all the little furry and feathered people of the Shady Forest and Sunny Meadow watched the Grand Parade of all the queer people that takes place just before the big show starts.

My, weren't they all having fun! Well, I guess yes three times and a half, and maybe four. I'm sure I can't count. "Remmy," my faithful old typewriter, and I are so excited describing Uncle Lucky's Greatest Show on Earth.

"Hurrah!" the next minute cried the little rabbit. "There's the Circus Queen!"

"Hurrah!" shouted the Big Brown Bear, and the next minute he shouted it three times, for the trained bears had begun to roller skate over the shiny platform floor.

Goodness me! How the Shady Forest Folk and the Sunny Meadow People enjoyed it all. Even Grandmother Maggie smiled and clapped her wings. As for Granddaddy Bullfrog, he hip-hurried until he grew so husky that he didn't make a sound when he opened his mouth!

By and by, after a while and many a smile, the show came to an end and Little Jack Rabbit's Circus Party was over. All the guests marched out to the Billygoat Stagecoach which was waiting at the main entrance to take them back to the dear Old Bramble Patch.

"Goodbye, come again next year," barked the big Policeman Dog on the street corner.

"Much obliged," answered Uncle Lucky, waving his old wedding stovepipe hat. "We'll be back inside a year, see you keep the crossing clear; let no taxi run us down when we come to Turnip Town!"

Dear, oh, dear! "Remmy," my old typewriter, neglected to put into verse form Uncle Lucky's pretty rhyme. "Remmy" must pay more attention to the bell that warns him with its silvery yell.

Away rattled the stagecoach, the billygoats prancing up Lettuce

Avenue as gayly as you please. Rumble, rumble; bumpety bump! bumpety, bumpety, bump, bump, jump!

All of a sudden "Toot, toot!" screamed the whistle on the ferryboat, as it neared the ferry slip. "Hurry up" it seemed to say. So the Old Dog Driver cracked his whip above the heads of the prancing billygoats, and in a few minutes the old stagecoach rattled over the gang plank and on to the ferryboat!

"Tinkle, tinkle!" sounded the bell, the big paddle wheels commenced to turn, and in less time than I can take to tell it the ferryboat was half across the River Sippi, and almost before the little duck shoe black boy had finished shining the old gentleman rabbit's shoes, into the slip it bumped. Clinkety clink, clinkety clink! sounded the chains as they wound themselves around the drum-wheels to hold the boat fast and tight to the wharf. "All ashore!" and in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

Faith In 'Tabor Luck' Justified By Latest Redemption of Mine

Leadville, Colo. (AP).—Again the "Tabor luck" has repaid a woman's faith.

The 69-year-old widow of "Silver Dollar" Tabor, who once had money to squander with the profligacy of an oriental potentate, has redeemed the Matchless mine—all that has remained in recent years of the once huge Tabor fortune, and itself non-productive of late.

The mine repays its owner's luck, and the widow's faith. "Baby" Tabor may leave her paper shack, throw away her millionaire's shoes and tattered gray shawl, and tread once more in the hills of Leadville as the wife of a multi-millionaire United States senator.

"Tabor luck," once a byword in the Colorado mountains, lately has been scorned by all except the widow. It originated in 1878.

At that time Tabor was owner of a small general store at Oro (predecessor of Leadville). One day two shoemakers, August Bische and George Hoch, entered the store and asked for a grubstake. Tabor gave them $60 worth of supplies. One article was a gallon jug of whisky.

The prospectors set out, and a duck approached they grew thirsty. They sat down and lifted the duck to their lips. No one knows if it was the whisky or what, but at any rate the prospectors decided to go no farther.

They drank some more and started to dig. The result was the carbonate of lead mine, the little Pittsburgh. It netted Tabor and the finders $1,300,000 in one year, and led to the purchase of the Matchless for $177,000. The Matchless subsequently produced $5,000,000, and other famous properties were developed.

Prodigal spending reduced the fortune, and Senator Tabor died. The widow and her two daughters moved to the Matchless, all that was left, and donated overalls. The daughters shortly afterward went east, but the mother stayed on with dogged faith in "Tabor luck." She has lived in poverty since.

In 1901 foreclosure was imminent and was averted only by the generosity of Winfield S. Stratton, old friend of Tabor, who redeemed the mine for $15,000.

In 1908 a mortgage of $7,500 became due. Ten minutes before the sheriff mounted the block Mrs. Tabor appeared with the money. More "Tabor luck."

Last summer the mine again went up for sheriff's sale. Mrs. Tabor asked a postponement, but could not obtain it. The mine went to the Shorego Mining company of Denver for the amount of the mortgage, a little over $18,000. Under the law she was given until April 17, 1929, for redemption.

And redeemed it she has, with the aid of the H. C. Stephens company, and "Tabor luck." Already the mining concern has installed pumps to clean out the watered mine, and engineers are planning to sink the original shaft to lower levels. They believe valuable deposits are there.

So "Baby" Tabor looks forward to another era of riches before she dies.

Sidelights of New York

New York—They are keeping watchful eyes on the silverware and other portable objects at the Waldorf-Astoria these last few days. For sentimental stripping of the historic old hotel which closes its doors May 1 already is under way.

The silverware hunters are overlooking nothing in their eagerness to carry away a keepsake. Candlesticks, mantel clocks and small oriental rugs—five rooms full of them—have been locked up. But towels—well, there has been such a shortage lately that new ones had to be purchased for the last few weeks.

Old habits of the Waldorf, some of them bachelors who have known no other home, have been hanging around the place "like" said one employee, "lost kids." And now that it's to come down, they are bidding for everything in it, from the cuspidors to the wainscoting and marble stairs.

Not all of the old furnishings are for sale, however. The painting of a ballerina stroking a cat—yes. It used to hang over the bar and was painted by Pierre Carrier-Belleuse, a Frenchman, in 1897. Comm. Henry L. Maxwell has paid $2,500 for it and will give it to his yacht club.

But not the bar itself, which is said to be stored in a sub-basement. Nor the Blasfield mural painted for the ceiling of the main dining room. Nor the original John Jacob Astor dining room, which will be removed intact and probably preserved in the new Waldorf-Astoria yet to be built. They are not for sale.

The names of purchasers in the hotel's sale do not mean much, for

Island Dream City Planned By Chicago For 1933 Exposition

By Allen L. Dalrymple
Chicago (AP).—An enchanted fairy city is to rise in Lake Michigan off the shores of Chicago.

Volcanoes of light playing on clouds of gas and vapors—phosphorescent seas and emerald flumes—by submerged colored globes—buildings seeming to reach the stars, towers and columns disappearing into the heavens—buildings of celluloid and glass—inferiors of fantastic structures, changing colors at the push of a button—noiseless electric launches—moving sidewalks and escalators running from floor to floor. These are the suggestions to be submitted April 29 to the Chicago centennial committee by their architects.

Visitors to the 1933 exposition will all go down to enter the place. Moving sidewalks will carry them from the street level to the artificial streets below.

Ingenuity of engineers has been called into play to obtain an effect of verticallity at certain points without having the buildings anyway near the height of the skyscrapers forming Chicago's skyline and the background of the fair. A series of islands in Lake Michigan will be built for the exposition locale.

A permanent fireworks impression will be given by shifting colored lights, passing over a group of columns, constructed of celluloid, tiling and glass. The columns will appear to move and their points to reach fantastic heights.

"Lighting is one of the most important considerations," Harvey Wiley Corbett, of New York, chairman of the architectural commission, said. "The possibilities of artificial light, both day and night, are so great they almost scare us."

Visitors, moving from building to building on the noiseless launches, will travel between the specially built islands over canals, whose waters will change color as the light beat slips along.

"Verticallity is a relative thing," continued Mr. Corbett. "We may not have anything in the air more than 500 feet high, but we hope to create a verticallity more intriguing than the near by skyscrapers. The tower of Babel probably did not exceed 250 feet but compared with the butts in which people lived then it was of enormous height."

Each floor of the buildings will be set back to provide for streets and sidewalks. Visitors to leave the grounds must pass through several buildings.

"We are going to make it easy for them to see everything that nothing will be overlooked," remarked Corbett. "At the same time we are going to give them something absolutely new in architecture."

BOB'S WHISTLE DISAPPEARS; LOUDSPEAKER ORDERS CREW ABOUT

London (AP).—Shades of Davy Jones! Suffering catfish! By the great horn spoon! Not to mention other choice and appropriate nautical epithets.

That, theoretically, is the verbiage now being indulged in by many a British jack tar, all because the admiral has taken away the boatswain's whistle and replaced it with loudspeakers.

The deed came to light when the new, post-Washington-treaty cruiser "London" came to port to be inspected by the subjects of this city. Orders were repeated all over the ship by a system of loudspeakers.

The new vessel just comes within the 10,000-ton limits of the Washington agreement when she is without stores, water, fuel and ammunition. Fully loaded she has a displacement of some 14,000 tons.

The cruiser will join the Mediterranean fleet. She carries eight eight-inch guns in pairs in four turrets, so arranged that four guns fire ahead or astern or eight guns fire broadside.

The eight-inch guns are of a new pattern and fire a 283-pound shell at the rate of 14 rounds a minute, which is considerably faster than the guns of any other type of cruiser now afloat. They are of 50 caliber.

The cruiser uses superheated steam in the engines, and the main propelling machinery is divided into four self-contained units, giving 80,000 horsepower and 31 1-2 knots speed. She is an oil burner. The vessel cost 10,739,185 without guns.

Some criticism has been made in the British press because, on paper, the "London" class of cruiser is inferior to that of the corresponding class of other nations. American and Japanese vessels of the same date and class are armed with 10 eight-inch guns each and have speeds of 32 or 33 knots.

In the later American design of cruisers the number of eight-inch guns is reduced to nine.

The French type have similar armaments to the British but engines of 130,000 horsepower and anticipated speeds of 34 knots.

Certain projected Italian cruisers are to develop 150,000 horsepower and to mount 14 four-inch guns.

HOME LIFE AND TRAINING AT MOOSEHEART

IN the natural course of events the children of Mooseheart will graduate from this Great "School That Trains for Life," will go out into the world and establish homes of their own, and every one of them will be able to do his part in the work of the home because of the training that he has received in the Child City. After each meal the boys, as well as the girls, proceed to clear the tables, wash the dishes, and "tidy things up a bit." Upon rising, these students make their own beds and set their rooms in order before going to school. This is part of the training in the "School That Trains for Life" founded by Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, and maintained by the Loyal Order of Moose. In this respect it is little different from the training received by the average boy or girl in the average American home.

MOOSEHEART GIRLS EXPERT WITH NEEDLE

THE children of Mooseheart, of whom there are about fifteen hundred, receive instruction in about fifty trades and vocations. Naturally, an important vocation taught the girl students in this famous child city is the designing and making of costumes. Photograph shows a recent exhibition of the work of Mooseheart girls. This exhibition included not only dresses, but all manner of things used in the decoration of the home—pillows, lamp shades, rugs, scarfs, curtains, draperies, and so on. Many who attended this exhibition pronounced the handiwork shown to be the best that they had ever seen.

SOURCE OF MOOSEHEART'S BUILDING MATERIAL

THERE is no busier department at Mooseheart, the trade school founded by Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, and maintained by the Loyal Order of Moose, than the ornamental concrete plant. In addition to learning this important trade, the students turn out a vast quantity of material used in the construction of new buildings at Mooseheart. Recently the new Baltimore Building was completed; at present a group of buildings donated by the Moose lodges of New York State is in the process of construction. All the concrete bricks for both were made by the students in the ornamental concrete plant.

Presidio, Tex., the "sleeping town of the Rio Grande," hopes for an awakening with prospective railroad developments. The population of this town which has been under six flags in its time has dropped from 5,000 to 700.

The magazine Motor Boating estimates that there are 1,856,000 boats on the inland and federal waterways of the country.

"I started taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound when I was 14 years old to build me up. I had been frail and nervous. After taking three bottles I was in normal condition. Since then I occasionally have a run-down feeling which makes me weak, nervous and irritable. By taking two or three bottles of the Compound I am back to normal."—Mrs. Jerry C. Jarvis, R. F. D.
